Surrender In Ethiopia Reformers Say 18 Now Detained

6 Top Aides

ADDIS ABARA, July 5 (AP).— Ethiopia's military reformers to-night announced the arrest of six top officials whom they consider corrupt and reactionary, including the commander of the army's 2d Division and the administrator-general of the Ethiopian Orthodox Church.

The official Ethiopian News Agency said the six had surren-dered, bringing to 18 the number of confirmed arrests since soldiers took control of Addis Ababa last

Many of the arrested persons were close to Emperor Haile Se-

Those who were arrested today were: Maj Gen Seyoum Gedle Giorgis, 2d Division commander in Eritres Province; Sen. Ermias Rebede, administrator-general of the church; Abebe Gehre and Brig. Gen. Samuel Beyene, both senators; Mahteme-Selassie Wolde-Meskal, a crown councilor, and Worku Mekasha, general manager of the Addis Ababa dairy industry.

Troops Guard Detainees

The detainees, accused of trying to perpetuate Ethiopia's feusystem, were held at riot police headquarters and at the race track, which was guarded by soldiers with machine guns. The rebel Armed Forces Committee amounced that some mili-tary radicals who had been detained by conservative forces during mutinies in March were

The committee, which still seeks as many as 200 civilians, also broadcast a warning to of-ficials believed to have taken refuge in the countryside. The committee told the officials they should surrender and not force the military to look for them.

Civilian Pressure Exerted A problem facing the reformers was lack of agreement among themselves on how far to go in seeking cabinet posts for inlitary men, land distribution to peasants. curtailment of the Emperor's constitutional powers and formation of a more representative government, observers said.

It was reported that military leaders were continuing discussions among themselves to work out a common program to avoid a major split.

A pamphlet circulated by a civilian group said the soldiers were not going far enough. The pamphlet attacked the Emperor as an enemy of the people and demanded the arrest of more officials. It was signed "The Common People."

Radicals in the air force seem prepared to accept violence as the price of political change, but other military branches have avoided bloodshed since Ethiopia's reforms began with military mutinies in February.

Commanders Flee Imofficial sources said both Col. Yelem Zaud, the paratroop commander, and Gen. Assets Gebre-Egzy, the air force leader, are in hiding.

Observers said the next crisis could occur when a 30-member commission issues its proposals for constitutional changes, per-haps as early as next week. The military will then have to decide whether to accept the proposals or demand more far-reaching

The Emperor, bowing to military pressure, agreed Wednesday to call a special parliamentary session to speed action on changes intended to strip him of most of his anthority, end state support for the Ethiopian Orthodox Church and make the premier responsible to parliament instead of to the aristoc-

Callaghan Sees EEC Stalling On U.K. Bid for Better Terms

LONDON, July 6 (AP). -Poreign Secretary James Callaghan suspects some Common Market countries are stalling Britain's bid for better terms because they feel Labor may lose the next election.

"They may well feel if there is no Labor government next time then perhaps a lot of the issues of renegotiation will drop away." he said

But the foreign secretary did not say which of Britain's eight European Economic Community partners "are waiting to see the result of the general election." The election is widely expected in

It was the first time any Labor government leader has suggested that some of Britain's partners may not be negotiating in good faith. The clear implication of his remark was that the KEO cede anything before the elective and Liberal parties resisted Labor's policy of seeking "a fundamental renegotiation" of the terms of Britain's membership in

In his first interview since taking office four months ago, Mr. Callaghan acknowledged Britsin's renegotiations "are going unevenly" now, with little advance likely before autumn. Most progress, he said, is being made toward opening the EEC's trading doors to developing countries of Africa, the Caribbean and the Pacific. This has been a major British aim because, he said, the community should not be seen 's rich men's club."

Nixon Has Blood Clot in Leg; Danger of Death Is 'Now Past'

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla., July 5 hospitalization for Mr. Nixon (AP).—President Nixon's doctor said that Mr. Nixon was warned that a permanent blood clot in his left leg might kill him during his Middle East trlp, but the President tosisted on going shead with travel plans.

"The danger is now past." Maj. Gen. Walter Tkach said last night. Gen. Tkach, an Army doctor, disclosed for the first time that Mr. Nixon has thrombophlebitis, which he said involves the presence of a permanent blood clot in his left leg. The White House had described the condition as phlebitis, the inflammation of a vein, but had declined to describe it as involving a blood clot.

Today, Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald Warren said that President Nixon had ordered that the seriousness of his ailment be kept secret because he feared public disclosure would interfere with his negotiations with foreign leaders.

The President did not want his health problems discussed, because he felt such discussion would get in the way of the goals he hoped to achieve on what he considered to be two important trips, Mr. Warren said in reply to a reporter's question on why the gravity of Mr. Nixon's condition had been kept hidden from the American public.

"The clot is pretty well fixed," Gen. Tkach said. He explained that it has attached itself to the wall of a vein and no longer is likely to break loose and go to Mr. Nixon's heart or lung-a development that could prove fatal. Gen. Thach said he considered when the President first told him of the leg swelling. But, he said, Mr. Nixon, who had kept the ailment secret from him for several days, was insistent on going forward with his Middle East trip, although "we told him what the potential hazards would be of a clot breaking off and hitting his heart or lung." #### 10-Year Arms-Accord Goal 'Saved Summit'

By Murrey Marder

PARIS, July 5 (WP).-Alarm over ending the Moscow summit talks in deadlock on the central nuclear issoe impelled the United States and the Soviet Union to come op with the goal of a 10year arms accord, informed sources now indicate.

President Nixon halled this agreement as the most significant nuclear accomplishment at the conference, although "the two sides have not yet reached a final accord on the terms of the agreement," he said: In fact, authoritative sources concede, the two sides are barely beginning to plumb the concept It was only put forward Monday night in Moscow as an alternative to a total impasse on limiting of-fensive strategic weapons.

At the end of intensive talks between Mr. Nixon and Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev on Saturday and Sun-day at Yalta the two sides had of the live-year offensive weapons accord signed in 1972 or a per-manent agreement.

Prospect of Stalemate They were faced with the grim prospect of admitting that they were stalemated on the core issue of nuclear controls. The repercussions of such an admitted deadlock upon all the hopes of Rast-West detente could have been profound. Neither side wanted to ccept those consequences.

What followed is an example of a new summit technique, in which an admission of a loss of momentum produces a compulsion to produce results, or jeopardize earlier advances. From information that can now be pleced together it is apparent why there were strong hints from Soviet sources last Sunday and Monday that prospects for a third U.S.-Soviet summit meeting suddenly had taken a turn for the worse. These reports persisted through Monday and Tuesday in Moscow with word from Soviet sources that Mr. Brezhnev was holding unusually long and somber meet ings with the Polithuro.

On Monday while Mr. Nixon went to Minsk, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko were groping for a way out of

That night, with President Nixon on his way back to Mos-cow from Minsk, the American delegation suggested a commise. If a two-to-five year extension of the 1972 agreement was out, as well as an indefinite agreement why not try for something in-between? This was the rationale behind what emerged as the proposed 10-year actually 11) limitation on offensive nuclear weapons.

Mr. Kissinger was not joking. it is now doubly evident, when he told newsmen on Wednesday in Moscow amid laughter that an accord that would run until 1985, instead of 1984, was "because we couldn't pick 1984."
That is the title of the late George Orwell's novel warning how the world would look if "big brother" dictatorables shared its rule.

What happened to set off the American-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks in this new direction, American officials say, include the following conclusions reached or confirmed at the sum-

Mr. Nixon and Mr. Brezhnev, it is said, talked more frankly than such adversarles ever have talked about each nation's per-ception of the other's power and potentialities for warfare.

The Soviet nightmare, as an authoritative source put it, is current inferiority' in numbers of deliverable nuclear warheads compared to the United States. The parallel nightmare of some American military leaders is some future American inferiorly.

The 1972 agreement gave the Soviet Union the advantage in total numbers of land and seabased missile launchers, 1,710 to 2.358. The Soviet missile construction program was then roar-ing ahead while the U.S. program was not. The United States was given compensating advantage in bomb-carrying planes and in its large numbers of multiple nuclear weapons, which the Soviet Union had not even begun to

By John W. Finney

WASHINGTON, July 5 (NYT), ternational Atomic Energy Agency —At least 26 nations could acquire atomic weapons during the next decade unless existing technical and political barriers are strengthened, U.S. arms con-trol officials believe.

That prospect has long been foreseen but political leaders had generally ignored it until India exploded an atomic device in May and President Nixon . offered atomic power plants to Egypt and Israel in June.

Thousands of people around the world are believed to have enough scientific and engineering knowledge to build rudimentary atomic

Their main handicap, however, is obtaining fissionable material. But that material, in the form of plutonhim, will be a byproduct of a growing number of atomic power plants, By 1982, the world's nuclear power plants will be producing about 220,000 pounds a year of plutonium—enough to build tens of thousands of nuclear explosives.

The remaining deterrent is political, the officials say. The nations would have to be persuaded to renounce the development of atomic weapons and accept international controls over their nuclear activities. None of the nations with atomic potential has signed agreements not to develop atomic weapons.

The Political Deterrent

Another disturbing factor as atomic technology spreads is the possibility that terrorist groups might get hold of plotonium to use for blackmail. Last fall, the Atomic Energy Commission issued strict requirements for the protection of atomic plants and materials.

Arms control officials hope that the example will be followed by other countries and by the In-

Five years ago, a majority of nations entered into a treaty to prevent the spread of atomi weapons. Righty-three nations have ratified the treaty. Under it the nuclear nations pledged not to help other nations acquire atomic weapons and those countries without such weapons pledged not to develop them.

Prevision for Controls But more important than such pledges was the system of inter-national controls established under the treaty to prevent the diversion of distanable materials such as plutenium to the manufacture of weapons. The treaty required nonnuclear states adhering to it to accept controls by the International Atomic Energy Agency ever all their present and future facilities and materials.

The next year will be crucial in testing whether the world community can prevent non-nuclear countries from using their plutonium to build atomic weapons; arms control officials fear.

Guerrillas' Conditions

Sen. Figueroa's friends believe he was not permitted to return because the government had not fulfilled the original conditions for the encounter: namely the withdrawal of federal troops and secret police who normally patrol the area.

Last week, however, local newspapers received a ransom note apparently signed by the guerril-las. Their demands—for $4 million, 100 automatic rifles and freedom for political and ordinary state prisoners, among were considered so "excessive" that the government ordered the full-scale hunt, reminiscent of Bolivia's search for

But Leaders Cautious On British Proposals

BELFAST, July 5 (UPI) .- Political leaders todey expressed guarded approval of a British government plan for the people of Northern Ireland to determine their own future through a constitutional convention.

Violence in the province continued, however. Security officials said a gang attacked a part-time policeman on Belfast's Donegall Road early this morning, shot him twice in the stomach and left him for dead.

The policeman underwent an emergency operation and was in serious condition in a Belfast nospital, officials said.

A policy paper released in London yesterday announced plans for the election of a 78-member constitutional convention which would enable representatives of all political factions here to discuss the inture of the province.

Direct Rule

Northern Ireland has been under direct rule from London since May 29, when Westminster suspended the provincial Assembly and Executive in the wake of a Protestant general strike.

Brian Faulkner, former chief executive of the province, said the paper justified the sharing of power between majority Protestants and minority Catholics.

The general public will be able to go unemotionally into elections for the convention," he said. "I believe they will support the poi-icies of the former power-sharing executive."

Hard - line Protestant leaders welcomed the plan. William Craig. leader of the Vanguard movement, said, "I think the majority of the community in Northern Ireland should be well pleased with the government's decision."

'Not Too Bad'

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP),-As evidence of its disappointment and anger over the Turkish de-cision to allow resumption of opium poppy cultivation, the United States has recalled William Macomber jr., the U.S. ambassador to Ankara.

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP) -The U.S. Export-Import Bank has authorized $176 million in low-cost financing for a nuclear power plant in Yugoslavia, the first time it has given aid for a nuclear project in a Commnnist country. The financing, extended in the form of a credit for purchase of U.S. equipment, is the largest ever given Yugoslavia by the bank and is unusual in the following respects:

• It provides 90 per ceot of the financing for sales of U.S. equipment for the project, compared to the normal 45 percent financing of Exim Bank loans. It guarantees repayment of an additional loan of $29 million to finance local costs, such as payment for Yugoslavian labor and equipment. Normally, local costs are not part of Exim Bank's financing.

Warren Glick, executive vicepresident of Exim Bank, said the and military officials said they unusually favorable terms were justified to keep West German interests from obtaining the contract.

The biggest union organization, the General Council of Trade Unions of Japan and a Socialistaffiliated citizens' group counterattacked today. They filed a complaint with the prosecutor's of-fice, alleging that Mr. Hashimoto had made a false, partisan accusation against Mr. Horigome.

Japan's blg corporations have in the past provided funds for the conservative Liberal Democrats but this is the first time they have openly supported candidates for the government party with manpower as well as money.

Also this week, a civic group filed a complaint against executives of the Mitsuhishi Electric Corp., charging that they had urged their employees to vote for a company-backed Liberal Democratic candidate. The controversy has tended to obscure the inflation issue, which opposition parties had regarded as trump card in their bid to end the Liberal Democrats' majority in the Upper House of the Diet (parliament). A total of 130 of the 252 seats are at stake.

Election in Japan

A familiar political story seems to be develeping in Japan, where voters on Sunday will elect half the 253 members of the Upper House of the Diet. An effort to bring four main opposition groups together in a common slate of candidates has falled, enhancing the probability that Premier Tanaka's Liberal-Democratic party will retain its majority in the House of Councilors.

Japan, buffeted by the highest inflation rate of any industrialized country, has been hard hit by the energy sbortage as well. With Mr. Tanaka's popularity skidding sharply in the opinion polls, the ruling party only a few months ago seemed certain to lose its nine-seat majority in the Upper House. But a blckering opposition and serious split among the Socialists, largest of the opposition groups, may save the day for Mr. Tanaka.

The Socialist party Issued the belated call for a united opposition front, but this ini-tlative was apposed by two other Socialist (actions and rejected by the Communists and by Komeito, the clean government party. By staying out of an election coalition, the Communists obviously hope to maintain their momentum of 1972, when they significantly increased their members in the Lower House from 14 to 40 and their popular vote from 6.8 to 10.5 per cent.

It will be unhealthy for Japan's democracy If the non-Communist opposition continues to be fragmented and ineffective. The Liberal-Democratic party, in power 25 years, is considering a set of new laws, ostensibly to help restore old Japanese virtues such as patrlotism and obedience but actually designed to curb press reporting, public protests and the leaking of corporate secrets. This is the kind of mave that needs to be challenged by a vigilant, democratic opposi-

Cross of Gold

A long-overdue bill to fulfill a United States commitment to help the world's poorest nations finally sailed through the House this week, burdened with an intolerable cross of gold.

This still-affluent nation can well afford the proposed $385 million contribution for the next four years to the World Bank's softloan window, the International Development Association (IDA). Indeed the United States would be shortchanging its own vital interests if it failed to maintain its reasonable share of this American-inspired international effort to head off potential explosive disaster in the less-developed world.

The price that some congressmen exacted for supporting this responsible action, however, may be more than the nation can bear -or at least more than it can responsibly be asked to risk. Appended to the IDA appropriation-in order to gain House votesis a totally irrelevant provision that would permit Americans to buy, sell and own gold for the first time in 40 years. The run on gold that this might touch off could have devastating effects on trade and payments balances abroad and nn capital markets at bome at a time when there is already perilous uncertainty on both fronts.

The gold clause, which appears in slightly differing forms in the House and Senate versions of the IDA bill, ought to be stricken in conference. At the very least, the conferees should empower the administration to postpone the lifting of gold restrictions if in its judgment such action would endanger the nation's prosperity and balance of payments. In its present form, the potential risks of this measure unfortunately threaten to overwhelm the unquestionable merit of its original and fundamental pnrpose to fulfill the American commitment to

Each time American broadcast correspondents tried to get out the story of what was happening to Soviet dissidents-with particular respect to the repressive precautions taken during Mr. Nixon's visit—the technicians cut them off in mid-sentence. It was a story the Russian authorities did not wish to have told while the summit was in progress, so they cut it off-just by pulling the plug.

It has never been easy for Western correspondents to get stories out of the Soviet Union that the government didn't want toid. And it is certainly true that the Soviet Union is not the only government in the world that resorts to censoring what it dislikes to hear. Yet the heavy fashion in which the Russians behaved on just this one occasion tells

It was only a week after the United States us all we need to know about the value of Sopreme Court had affirmed the principle a free press and the price that is paid when an overbearing government intervenes. The story the Americans were attempting to tell concerned the general problem of the lives of dissidents in the Soviet Union, and espepictures from the Moscow summit showed cially their treatment while President Nixon what happens when governments take into was in town. The story of the way that Mr. Nixon's presence resulted in the Russian authorities rounding up their local critles and jailing them was of more than passing interest to the American people.

And yet Mr. Nixon's aides were conspicuously silent on the subject, declining to lodge any forceful formal protest, saying merely to whomever might be listening that the American broadcasters should have the right to cover and report whatever they pleased. It is somewhat disappointing that no one in the President's party was willing to defend, if only for the record, the elementary principles, so central to a free system of government, of a free press. Ironically, it was left to the Russians, by their abrupt interruption of the American broadcasters, to drive the lesson home.

International Opinion

President Nixon and Watergate

President Nixon's parley at the summit with Mr. Brezhnev will make the worln a less unsafe place than it would otherwise have been in the late 1970s and early 1980s. Each has agreed to be content with one field of antiballistic missiles instead of two. This should mean that the deterrent will continue to deter at least to the same extent that it does now. World peace will continue to depend upon the threat of devastation but the balance of terror will not have been upset. The agreement to reduce and limit arms is a solid achievement and ought to be welcomed everywhere. . . . The agreements bring relief, but they do not prove that the Soviet Union and the United States understand each other better than they did before or that they have come closer together.

—From the Guardian (London).

In other times. Nixon's comeback would bave been a trlumph. But we have been inrexarmed that applause will not be appropriate. Because it is in divert the attention of honest citizens, to try to make the Watergate affair forgotten, that Nixon has stockpiled these unhelievable dlolomatic successes. It was to conceal bis sins, to hide the drop in his prestige, that he condemned himself to success. This is what the Nixon baters repeat. And it is not because of Watergate that they started baiting Nixon; they have been hunting him since 1947. . . . Should he be impeached or should be resign? Hunting strategists have various opinions on this. . . . "This won't last," some say, "we'll get him." May'e. Bnt I personally believe rather that it is the canonization of this disliked President which is likely in the more or less long term. I believe that in a few years we will read in virtunus American editorials. that Richard Nixon-who is not an angel-has the exemplary ment of showing that in a real democracy the executive is not necessarily sbaken by waves of opinion and that a president can act and even reinforce the prestige of his country in the world, while, at home, good souls, every day, splash him with mud.

Summitry and Hypocrisy

By James Reston

NEW YORK-Nobody seems to be very happy about the Nixon-Brezhney summit meeting; actually it was more honest than most. It was a stand-off-a holding operation in a time of political uncertainty all over the world. In this sense, it was a realistic conference because it expressed the political realities, which are uncertain at best.

Nations do not commit them-selves to fundamental military changes affecting the balance of power in the world, when both politics and technology are in the process of revolutionary change. Nobody knows what inventions and politicians will be influencing the course of events in the next few years.

Henry Kissinger is undoubtedly right in thinking that the pace of nuclear technology is outrunning the pace of political stability or even common sense in the world. "Both sides," he observed, "have to convince their military establishments of the benefit of restraint, and that is not a thought that comes naturally to military people on either side."

The Military

But neither Nixon nor Brezhnev is now strong enough, politically, to compel their military budgets or take chances for peace. In a time of political weakness and confusion, the military men and their political allies tend to prevail: this is what happened in Moscow.

In practical terms, Brezhnev could not enter into long-range military agreements with an American president facing im-Similarly, Nixon could peachment. not, with all his other troubles. agree to concessions on weapons that would infuriate the Joint Chiefs of Staff and their conservative allies in the Congress, whose votes be needs to avoid impeachment and conviction.

So, the summit meeting came out about as expected. If it bad been any worse, it would have been a disaster, and if it had been presented as a triumph. it would have been a fraud. Even so, the pretense of success on both sides by Nixon and Brezhnev was a little thick

In a way, this is reassuring, Nixon and Brezhnev don't agree, but insist on trying to agree. They don't believe in their dreams of U.S.-Soviet understanding, but believe in believing, and agree to keep talking in the hope that something will turn up. And this is some kind of progress.

What is not clear is why they overstate their limited successes and underestimate their fundamental differences, and, in the process, confuse the American and Soviet peoples. On his way home from Moscow, Nixon stopped in Maine on his way to Key Biscayne, and argued that he was on the way to permanent peace, that he and Brezhney were engaged in an "irreversible" process toward concord in the world when obviously everything is impermanent these days and re-

The truth is that the world needs fundamental changes in the control of military arms, inflation, prices, trade, population and the environment, but does not have the political unity to deal with these fundamental questions. This is Kissinger's main point. He keeps driving for the objective but does not have the politycal backing to put it over.

It is not only that Nixon and Brezhnev cannot agree about these fundamental international issues. The governments of the Soviet Union and the United States are also divided internally Secretary of State Kissinger and Secretary of Defense Schlesinger disagree about what should be done on these fundamental strategic questions, but cover up their disagreements.

Brezhnev has the same problem with his military leaders and his Politburo. No wonder, then, nobody. But at least it kept the negotiations going, and raised the possibility of agreements later on in the 70s or 80s.

Divisions

By that time, of course, as Kissinger implied, the arms race may be beyond control. Also, Kisdoubtedly then be out of power. But for the present, the main Moscow are still too divided at home and still too suspicious of one another to reach fundamental agreements on a new order in Solshenitsyn's The Gulag Archi-pelago, 1918-1956," cautions us among other things, that the ideology and the system that fortured and killed millions with the camps are both still alive and

The subject of the camps is obviously still relevant and will be as long as the law and the courts are not outside of, and above, the party apparatus and the ideology; the practice of making everything ideological is inextricably linked to lawlessness, if not indeed the tame thing.

Mr. Solshenitsyn's book also reveals that the camps, as the incarnation of suffering and op-pression, will endure even after today's ideologies and systems disappear and are forgotten.

Soviet Theory

Soviet legal theory even today adheres to Lenin's revolutionary and essentially totalitarian teaching about the unity of the "three authorities" about the subordi-nation of administration and of the courts to the decisions, that is to the laws, of the party. The dynamics of totalitarianism flickered out with Stalin's death. But the ideology and the power from which totalitarian forces are replenished are still preserved; the camps are still present in the consciousness of people and in the way things are done. Communist jurisprudence in no way fetters the party oligarchy. "Discreet" behind-the-scenes influences and decisions have never been forbidden. Not a single Communist state is a legal state in the true

No wonder, then, that both the rulers and the dissidents are still obsessed with the camps—espe-cially in the Soviet Union, the fatherland of many achievements but also of the concentration camps. The rulers four that the truth about the camps will open up discussion about ideology and power as the "builders" of the "most humane", "classless" society. Dissidents, however, hold that the

RELGRADE - Communists are truth must rock the system by the very fact that it reveals entrenchment in power to be the essence and the real goal of the idealogized bureaucracy. The rulers, exactly because they are the slaves of power, see more than there is in reality and overmagnify the dangers. For even without the truth about the camps, life has already settled the fact that totalitarismism has only entrenched the party bureaucracy and thereby has dispelled the mythology of "classicsaness."

The truth about the camps will strengthen legal rights and introduce reason into society. That N is not minor. But it also is not . !!. the whole, absolute truth about the system: Communism also has other, if less monstrous, elements. Does the total truth exist about any society? Can life—and society is also life—be described by a single formula or by a single aspect, even by its most tragic aspect?

The total truth is only another expression of the total negation of society. And total negation is already a dogma, an ideology and — again — a movement toward tobalitarianism.

With this, I do not mean to say that the party bureaucracy will become considerate, or that the system will liberalize libert by its own efforts. Up to now all liberalizations have ended with Soviet intervention or with the return to dogma and the appa-

But what will emerge out of communism depends in many ways also on the views and methods of its opponents and "collab-orators." And not only of those in communism, but of those outside it. Because today communism is less an ideology than a series of states differing in their circumstances and partially even in their structures. These states are a part of the world community. Thus every criticism of communism is today also a discussion of the fate of the world.

Ideology stagnates, and with it the party bureaucracy. But under the Communists there also have arisen-independent of their will -viable forms (the managerial stratum, free artists, administra-tion, education, social insurance) that survive despite the death behind them and the decay above

France's nuclear force is ex-

DARIS.—The United States goverument quite obviously ex-pects political relations with France to become more intimate under its newly installed government and the prospect of a Nixon-Giscard d'Estaing summit, following one of Henry Kissinger's pathfinding missions, will certainly belp warm a friendship that has sometimes faltered. But this reaffirmation of close ties that have sometimes been needlessly piqued is not expected to result in any major improvement in military links between this country and NATO. Despite certain differences between the Giscard regime and its orthodox Gaullist predecessor, there is not yet a question of reintegrating French forces into the alliance.

An Exercise

It is, however, hoped by high sources in both Washington and Paris that bilateral strategic relations will improve, possibly leading eventually to some coordingtion between French nuclear targeting and that of the Atlantic high command.

The latter has now been altered to take into account a U.S. pledge of immediate selective missile strikes against Soviet military installations in the event of a major attack on Western Europe —something which is in the nature of a planning exercise since no such attack is held conceivable Hitherto French doctrine (as revised since the resignation of President de Gaulle in 1969) re-lied on immediate use of France's small nuclear weapons stockpile 25 soon as any French forces are hit in the unlikely event of war. So far there has never been an

"European" force as a means alding the organization of a politically united Surope. These hints implied the United States might release British from its pledge not to reveal secret information received from the U.S. to develop its national force. However, such intimations petered out and never meant much. The trouble is not with American rejuctance to see Britain share the few bits of knowledge obtained from us that effort to coordinate the targets selected for such arms with the tergets listed by NATO and U.S. are still regarded as secret. Now, however, with NATO's accentance of the new doctrine of

France Alone

The real trouble is that France, all alone, by a tough program of testing and by brilliant engineer-ing, has already surpassed Britain and developed a superior atomic capability. Certainly in military nucleonics and probably in most phases of peaceful aspects, the French have lorged shead

One consequence of this is a declining French interest in the concept of pooling which had been especially cherished as a long-term project by former British Prime Minister Heath and the late President Pompidou. And, while the United States was eager to support any move that seemed to contribute to ultimate political unity in Europe (not just sn economic bloc), it disfavors the idea of diverting too large a share of British resources to such an effort.

Moreover, the present Washington administration is privately convinced that a pooled Franco-British force might encourage more spending than it was worth, either strategically or as a political symbol. Also that any-way it could have no real value to Epropean noity unless West Germany were given a more all-thositative voice in its administration and direction than either the French or the British would MAIL

Thus despite indications of greater warmth in French-US., French-Geman and French-NATO relationships, the dramatic token of such amity—a "European" nuclear force—seems even further from realization than a C The New York Times.

Italian Chamber Removes Immunity of Neo-Fascist

ROME July 5 (AP).-The Chamber of Deputies yesterday lifted the parliamentary immunity of Italy's neo-Pascist leader and ordered him to face charges of instigation of an armed revolt against the state.

The charges had been filed against Giorgio Almirante by a magistrate in the central Itahan towa of Spoleto.

Mr Almirante was quoted as naving told a rally of his party at Cascia, near Spoleto, that 'youths must get ready for action before others" and that he expected to achieve from the response of the party "results similar to those in Portugal, Spain and Greece.

Mr. Almirante reportedly said his party "for the time being has no rifles to give to its youths."

The Spoleto magistrate brought the case to parliament last Sep-tember. All parties backed the charges with the exception m Mr. Almiracte's MSI group. The neo-Pascist leader had been

Reform Pledges Begin to Haunt Marcos

By Sydney H. Schanberg

MANILA, July 5 (NYT) -Oue of the biggest problems facing President Perdinand Marcos's mariial-lay government is that its publicity machine has consis-tently claimed too much for it. Aimost every day, Manila newspapers use banner headlines to announce sweeping decrees and promises that, it is evident, can herer oe fulfilled.

The problems of the Philippines do not lend themselver to quick transformations—not enough land for all the sharecroppers who have been promised it, not enough jobs for the fastest-growing population in Asia, and so on Ano promises that raise aspirations car also raise unrest when performance falls short.

Mr. Marcos, in interviews with foreign journalists, says he would like the Philippine press to be less sycophantic and to ofter some criticism of government programs Such realism would be salutary, but the press, which remains muf-fied, has considered it wiser to keep reporting "revolutionary re-forms" and "economic miracle" bolo headlines.

The gagging of the news media. the arrests of thousands of dis-sidents and political opponents. and the general suspension of amil rights have often been the focus of reports in the Western press about the martial-law government, which is nearly two years old, and officials complain bitterly that the reports have been unfair. In a sense, but surely not in the sense they mean, they may be nght.

No Burning Issue

Although his critics brand Mr. Marcos a dictator, civil rights are a mirning issue among Filipinos. Most have never had them because 70 per cent of the populapessants who hale lived under feudal laun barons and have had the kind of rural unrest that  $\pi a$  no social or economic mobility. The before martial law.

Essentially only the elite, and the intelligentsia in Manila enjoyed or understood civil rights, and there is no denying their distress. An intellectual who spent three mouths in iaf in the early days of martial law, said: You used to be able to say anything to anyone. Now I have to look around and see who s listenwe before I spcak.

Influential though the educateo class is, the country's most important pressure group is the impoverished people in the countryside. It is no accident that Mr. Marcos, 56, a man of political skill, has made agratian reformllie transfer of land from largely absentee owners to the sharecroppers who have been tilling it for them-the cornerstone of his מתמיים לו

President Marcos promised in the emancipation decree issued shortly after the declaration of martial law in September, 1972. that a million peasant families would receive 7 to 12 acres of the rice or corn land they had been tilling as sharecroppers or tenants, with each landlord allowed to keep 17 acres.

It worked well enough with holdings of more than 50 acres, a large number of which have ocen broken up. But the government soon hiscovered that 60 per cent or more of those tuvolved worked for landlords who owned 17 acres or less.

But if Mr. Marcos fails to keep his promise to the sharecroppers, it may lead to an explosion of Ahram reported today.

Jobs are another area in which government promises far outdistance reality. Nearly 30 per cent of the working population is either unemployed or underemployed. with no substantial improvement foreseeable soon.

Per capita income is just over

5200 a year and nearly half the population is undernourished. Doing Their Best

There is no doubt that Mr. Marcos is attempting some badir needed reforms, and even his critics acknowledge that many of the technicians and economic ministers who have been entrusted with carrying them out are doing their best.

The auccesses of the martiallan era have been widely publicized. The violent crime and bauditry for which the Philippines was notorious have been reduced. Foreign-exchange reserves, foreign investment and tourism have increased sharply. Basically, these improvements result from the establishment of order and have little to do with fundamental social reform. Some diplomats think the next six months to a year may be critical for the Marcos government.

ART MARKET

A Hard Time for Impressionists

By Souren Melikian

TONDON (IHT).-Given the mood of broady reticence on the part of collectors and dealers, if seliers keep on overpricing their "wares," they could cause lasting damage to the art market. This week's sales—and nonsales—in London were symptomatic.

Reserve prices were so high that lot after lot failed to find buyers and the market was badly shaken. At Christie's sale Monday of top impressionist paintings -there were only 15 oils-the house was full. It would be hard to argue that the auctioneers had failed to promote the sale properly.

The first lot, a Pissarro, had been withdrawn before the sale. The next two were bought in. One was a Pissarro, "Rouen, Cours-La-Reine." signed and dated 1898—the hammer fell at £44,-100-below the reserve. Next was a Renoir, "Le Gultariste Espagnol," with a good pedigree-Durandhad bought the painting from the artist in February, 1897: later it belonged to Chester Beatty. It went unsold at £92,000.

A beautiful portrait by Bonnard was the first painting to find a buyer but at £38,750, paid by the O'Hanna Gallery of London, it was not expensive. A pret-

not in perfect condition. 'Modern' Prices

New York art broker Jacques Kaplan expressed the view that people were shunning investments in impressionism because secondrate works are overpriced. In contrast, the prices for modern and avant-garde masterpieces are low. That was never so obvious as this past week in London.

The South African who bought Lyonel Feininger's "Mondlicht in den Dünen" Wednesday at Sothehy's is better off than anyone who would have been willing to pay more than £194,000 for the Monet river scene. Painted in 1944, the Feininger oil (61 by 91.5 centimeters), is a geometrical landscape in green, turquoise blue and othre that should rate as one of the great works of the 20th century. It cost its buyer £43,000 and is worth, aesthetically, more than an indifferent Monet.

At the same sale, MODARCO, Panama-registered investment fund run by Ephraim Ilin, acquired Juan Gris's "La Table Devant le Bátiment," (60 by 81 centimeters). It is an important work and even though the price -E86,000-was stiff by present standards, it was comparatively mon R. Guggenheim Foundation cheaper than the Monet.

There were some definite bargains. It is staggering to think that an important and magnificent picture by Albert Gleizes, showing a semiabstract, semicubist view of Lower Manhattan, painted in 1915, made only £10,500. The work (92 by 72.5 centimeters) was purchased from the artist and was put up for sale by the Solo-

Such contrasts in prices are enough to kill the whole impressionist category—barring museum quality pieces. Absurd reserve prices largely account for the poor showing made this week by works long held to be gilt-edged securities on the art market.

THEATER IN LONDON

'Cole'-Just One of Those Nights

By John Walker -

ONDON (IHT) .- There is a show husiness faw. ignored by everyone (for showbiz, being allied to gambling, believes in the existence of fooiproof systems, despite all evidence to the contrary), that sequels are never as successful as originals. So it is with "Cole" or son of "Cowardy Custard," at the Mermaid, Theatre.

Just as last year the theater had a hit by linking some 70 of Noel Coward's songs to autobiographical snippets of his prose, so this year they repeat the formula with Cole Porter-although, as he left little prose behind, they fill the gaps be-tween songs with reminiscences cuiled from his friend Gerald Murphy and hits of the writings of Scott and Zelds Filtsgerald on the somewhat sinky premise that these two celebrated a similar Amer-

The basic failure of "Cole" is due to the fact that it's been done as cheaply as possi single black-and-white set in 1930s style just about gets by when the lighting is too bright. The costumes are dreadful and the cast and six-piece band ara professional and competent but in no way outstanding.

There is a banality about the presentation that reaches a nadir in a setting for "Night and Day" that has Kenneth Nelson singing pleasantly while, above him, Una Stubbs poses awkwardly in chiffon in front of a moving cloudscape that was last on view in the Mermaid's "Treasure Island." Miss Stubbs then descends to dance a few unnecessary steps before again freezing into an absurd posture. This reliance on the devious, this determination not to stray from cliche is the mark of second-rate talents at work.

Wilting Material

It is not surprising that, in this deadening atmosphere, much of the material (first-rate though it is) wilts. Popular song-writing is a miniaturist's art, anyway, and hardly suited to the pretensions of a show lasting some three hours and containing more than 50 songs. At first, in this dull company, Porter's wit and elegance glitter tion-and the show's lack of any style-finally become wearisome.

His songs are the object of so much attention that it is their flaws you motice; the way Porter flattered the smart set that formed his closest audience some snobbish extracts from Zelda Fitzgerald's Save Me the Waltz show them at their nastiest and underneath that definess and wit; his brittle style and personal pain, his reliance on sentimentality.

In one of his best songs, "Love for Sale"-well sung by Angela Richards, who is the only member of the cast to add a personal touch to the songshe achieves his bitter-sweet effect by setting up a false opposition. "Let the poets pipe of love, I know every type of love," sings his prostitute going on to hymn "appetizing young love for sale." The effect is at Drat of a devastatingly honest song— emept that prostitutes don't sell love, but ser, a subject that poets rarely write about and never pipe about. "I'm a Gigolo" (song by Peter Gale, who would be more at home in a P.G. Wodehouse world) has a wryness that is nearer to truth.

Of course, a show can't be all bad that includes "It's De-Lovely." "In the Still of the Night," "From This Moment On," "Just One of Those Things," "I Get a Kick Out of You," and "What Is This Thing Called Love," can it? Well, no, it can't, although the Mermald's production comes closer to achieving that then I would have thought

On Tuesday, Jonathan Miller's production of Beaumarchais's "The Marriage of Figure," translated by John Wells, opens at the National Theatre. On Wednesday, Peter Luke's "Bloomsbury" star-ring Daniel Massey as Lytton Strachey and Yvonne Mitchell as Virginia Woolf opens at the Phoenix

Mastroianni, born in 1910 and Italy's leading official sculptor. not only recently had a large retrospective in Turin, but is not honored in Rome with three exhibitions. His work clearly derives both from cubism and futurism, the first emphasizing the formal and the stable, the second dynamics and motion, and although Mastroianni hovers between both the poles at times, he most often favors the thrust of the second. Contrary to the recent overrefinement of contemporary Italian art, he leans toward an older Italian characteristic, a flair for dramatic gesture. His huge abstract structures seem to burst with a rough unbridled energy.

The pieces displayed on the steps of the Villa Borghese park, opposite the entrance of the GNAM, are by far the most impressive and simplest. Totem or robot, the forms blend handsomely with the parkscape of umbrella pine and foliage. Inside

Equipo Cronica is composed of Rafael Solhes and Manuel Valdes. They use their graphic knowhow to produce large canvases comosed of mootages and quotations from famous paintings. The irony is oot always transparent but is manifestly intended both as political criticism and as a critical statement on the function of art. The four Milanese painters, Baralella. De Filippi, Mariani and Spadari, also deal with political subjects Baratella's work is a rather sticky erotic parable of Italian politics, De Filippi gives us some photographically pedestrian portraits of Lenin, Mariani presents caricatures of human types seen through mechanical shapes and Spadari illustrates historic events of the Communist movement in this century. -MICHAEL GIBSON.

An exhibition of 130 etchings and engravings, done by James Ensor from 1886 to 1934, is being held to the casino in the artist's hometown. And the house where Ensor and his family lived -his mother had a bizarre souvenir shop on the ground floorhas just been re-opened as a permanent Ensor museum. The shop has been recreated—making a perfect Ensor still life in three dimensions. Upstairs are more Ensor memorabilla, some of his copper plates, reproductions of his masterpieces from all mer the world. The essence of the artist's spirit has been distilled the homely aurroundings of the little house. For an artist with Ensor's sensa of color, black and white en-gravings could have been irrelevant. But, as the show at the casino proves, graphics became a separate form of self-expression for him, as individual and demanding as his paintings. Possihly he found relief from tension in the etching techniques. His was an extraordinary, almost fiendish sense of humor. And he had the gift of deploying massed crowds in settings fraught with

In each case, sources say, the melin's profits at critical contracts were made at artificial exchange rates that bore no rela-tion to the market values of the chirencles involved.

The orders, it is alleged, were n one or more persons in to be placed at rates favorable to Frankin. The department allegedly was instructed to confirm the transactions with Carlo Bordoni, then a director of Franklin New York and a close asso-ciate of Mr. Sindons.

Currency Beals
The dealings on a day last October, sources say, involved a series of orders under which Franklin purchased a number of currencies from Amineor and then sold them back at higher prices. The sources say the dealings were at prices outside realistic market values that day and resulted in a gain of about $2 million; which ammeer pam to Franklin by check.

On March 28, the Franklin traders allegedly were instructed to place forward-buy orders for British pounds, French francs and Swiss francs—again at artificial rates and at the confirmation of Mr. Bordoni. The convencies involved in the dealings are understood to have been scheduled for Later, Franklin New York restated the period's results to show a $39.9-million net loss reflecting other discrepancies in the foreign exchange activities.

Mr. Bordoni, who resigned last month as a Franklin New York director and is currently man-aging director of Società Generale Immobiliare, has denied any part in the Pranklin-Amincor dealings.

Mr. Sindons similarly scoffed at any suggestion that the Franklin-Amincor transactions were rigged by any of his associates. He ited that neither he nor any of his group has any "direct or indirect investment" in Amineor. Carlo Amarca, a senior member of Amincor's management, has a somewhat different understanding. He says that 58 percent of Amincor's shares are in Swiss hands, while 42 percent are owned by an Italian group associated with Mr. Sindona's banks. He declines to name the Italian

Mr. Bordoni himself was a member of Amincor's board from late 1969 to Feb. 14, 1973, the bank's annual report shows.

Jobless Rate Is Stable in U.S. in June

Despite Some Fears Of Rise to 6 Per Cent WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP) .-

The U.S. jobless rate stood firm in June despite the traditional surge of students seeking work the Labor Department reported After adjustment to allow for regular seasonal variations, the department said the unemploy-ment rate was 52 per cent. The number of unemployed rose 46,-000 to 4.8 million. Total employment rose 194,000 to 862

Ever since a steep rise from October's low of 4.6 per cent, the unemployment rate has stub-bornly resisted puncturing the 5.2 per cent level this year.

The continuation of the unemployment rate at this ferel through June is one of the more gratifying economic developments of 1874 so far," said Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors. The Nixon administration had originally expected unemploy-ment in the first balf of this year to hit 6 per cent, the level the rate hit periodically throughout 1971, when Presiden. Nixon imposed wage and price controls. Employment in the auto and construction industries has dipped 145,000 below mid-year 1972, but employment has increased in other industries, paced by a 1.5 million increase among workers employed in service industries. The result has been an unemployment rate which has varied by no more than twotenths of 1 per cent since January.

effect, for German commercial banks' foreign liabilities. This, of course, would be a major undertaking and probably require political decisions at the Fund. The so-called management committee would "warn against emergency situations in the trade field, or deal with sich situations should they arise,"

Observers also see the proposed committee as a defensive reaction to stave off increased "meddling" of other international organizations into world trade matters

U.S. Airlines Report Growth In Travel Is Slowing Down

By Robert Lindsey

NEW YORK, July 5 (NYT).— An unexpected surge in domestic ways, now that gasoline is more plentiful. "It's topering off. and I supair travel earlier this year has pose it's going to stay that way for the rest of the year." Anthony lost much of its thrust in recent weeks, and airline executives are trying to determine why. Travel is still on the upswing, but for most airlines it is at a much slower pace than it was a few weeks ago.

Although the reasons for the trend are not fully clear, many airline officials attribute it to a combination of factors, growing public anxiety about inflarecent air fare increases and the return of some shortdistance travelers to the high-

Savings Banks in U.S. Sue To Block Planned Note Issues

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP-DJ). -A New York court was asked today to rule that the Federal Reserve Board has power to regulate the terms of note offerings by bank holding companles.

The ruling was sought in suit brought by the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks and other savings banks in an effort to block planned offerings by Citicorp and Chase Manhattan Corp., holding com-panies of First National City Bank and Chase Manhattan Bank respectively.

The savings banks fear that the attractive terms of the note offerings, together totaling about $1 billion, will induce a heavy drain on their deposits because investors will withdraw their funds to gain the higher interest rates offered by Citicorp and Chase.

In the suit the savings banks claim that the Fed has the statutory power to regulate such offerings under section 19 of the Federal Reserve Act.

Earlier this week the Pederal Reserve Board stated that it did not believe it had such power. The board said at the same time that the offering by Citicorp would "deprive homebuyers needed mortgage finance and the board also questioned whether "an offering of this type is in the public interest at this

Tex. today asked Citicorp chairmen Walter Wriston to delay Citicorp's proposed $850-million floating interest rate note offering until Congress and federal agencies can study the effects of such notes.

On Wednesday, Rep. Patman and Sen. William Proximire, D. Wis., second-ranking member of the Senste Banking Committee. asked the Securities and Exchange Commission to delay spproval of the notes. The SEC has not yet responded to that re-

Rep. Patman, in a public letter to Mr. Wriston, said the proposed notes would disrupt the money markets and could have a bod effect on housing markets.

"With the entire housing market severely starved for funds. and while potential disintermediation and liquidity problems abound in the financial community, I find the proposed notes of Citicorp to be highly disruptive and as the Federal Reserve has noted not in the public interest," Rep. Patman sold in his letter.

Theater.

The Trib has its own first nighters " all over Europe... and reports regularly on the New York stage as well.
If it's the smell of greasepaint and the roar of the crowd you're after, then you ought to read the Tribune every day.

Inc.

And S.A. and Ltd. and GmbH — you see the key ones every day in the advertising columns of the International Herald. Tribune.

For this is the paper the significant Europeans read - and this is the audience significant corporate advertisers are talking to.

rasmon.

Mini, midi, maxi-which? The fashion writers of the Herald Tribune will go to any length to keep you fully informed.

So will our advertisers!

Read the Herald Tribune for all the very latest news of what's new,

what's on sale where.

ochoois.

Where to send them to school? The Edocation Directory is a regular feature of the International Herald Tribune. cational services all

Schools and other eduover Europe are listed - for the eager-to-learn from six to sixty.

The fine art of good eating is a favorite European pastime - and gourmets eat up the Tribune's food articles. Where to eat what, and for bow much, is cov-ered regularly in the feature pages of the Inter-national Herald Tribune.

Reporting as objective as humanly possible, plus background to put events into perspective - that's what we call news.

Interpret this news with signed editorial comment and you have the Herald Tribune — Europe's one international newspaper.

Audience-conscious sirlines place more advertising in the Herald Tribune than in any other European newspaper.
Why? The Tribune's the paper significant Europeans read, and it's on sale at more than 8500 newsstands every day.

Every week the Herald Tribune reports on the wonderful world of art in Europe: wbat's new, old and interesting everywhere.

That includes galleries and the auction houses, too: it's important reading if you paint, sculpt or merely collect.

the women's liberation movement, as if its heroine can only faintly hear, high in her ivory tower, the boisterous slogans of her "sisters" down in the street. I get the impression that Maxine Kumin, a Pulitzer Prize-winning poet, is too fastidious to accept the more aggressive or collective manifestations of the movement, and so her novel of a young woman trying to "find herself" strikes a rather uneasy compromise between feminism and the old-fashioned personal odyssey. We find Robin Parks up in New Hampshire helping Jeif Rabinowitz rebuild a fallen down farm. He is an urban-housing dropout and she is a part-time English instructor. Their building a house together is one of those contemporary congruences we have learned to expect, until she turns it into a tortured metaphor. "Closing in a house was a sacred act, she could understand that. To build was to dwell. But to put an imprimatur on all that traversing and measuring of space?

A woman who thinks in such compulsively symbolic terms is fated to sabotage things. Wheo Jeff proposes marriage as a logical sequence to their successful collaboration in the house, in sparing their ideas and in bed -Robin objects that she is "inadequate to marriage." Asked what she proposes instead, she thinks: "What she wanted was beyond her saying. A light in the clearing, a sense of a plan. An immediate sircle of beings to love and serve." I must confess that I fail to see anything ineffable about this. It sounds like the prescription for all high

But no. Jeff must go-at least Robin temporarily — because "wants to come into her own" and she "doesn't even know where it is" with Jeff around to leao oo. She is looking for something like the Zuni initiation rite, in which the terrifying masked gods suddenly pull off their masks and transfer them to the trembling boys' heads, thereby dumping their destinies in their own laps. Robin is one of those people who feel that she has re-experience the trauma of birth before she can go about her business. In this sense, the rebirth trauma is taking the place of the debut, or coming-out party. She would feel cheated of one of life's awesome rituals if she simply said to Jeff: "O.K. I love you and you love me. We get aloog. We're happy in and out of bed. You can call me Mrs. Rahinawitz, if you like," So Jeff vanishes—how splendidly mobile we all are—and Robin has 22 affair with David, in which she learns that she prefers a lover winc "participates" to one who merely performs. David and Jeff make much lie same sort of wisecracks, only David's are more cynical, because he doesn't participate in them. Jeff says to Robin that "the real primal scene is the first time you have to be a parent to your parent," David says, "a garoener is someone who has been blocken in the area of developing normal human relationships and moralizes by way of a garden." All

THE Designated Heir" is a three of them sound as if they barely supraliminal echo of chose their books from adjacent shelves of the same "in" store. Jeff has a brother who goes insane and commits suicide-for no better reason than I can detect than Miss Kumin's desire to explore a few madness metaphors. He certainly is not in-tegral to the book. Robin has an alcoholic mother, whose condition is given the skimplest of case histories; an elderly aunt; and a tyrannical dowager of a grand-mother who come off somewhat better. Her grandmother's imperiousness apparently holds Robin's family together, for the moment she dies, Robin, the sole inheritor, pensions off mother and aunt and starts looking for ways to give away the million dollars. Presumably this will free her, will expunge her unhappy history.

Call me mercenary, but I can't see the harm in keeping the money. It isn't as if her grandisther stole it or sweated it out of other men's souls. Money is as good or bad, it seems to me, as the people who use it. Robin's repugnance for it again smacks of the rebirth trauma—the need to do everything from scratch, to be self-made in an impossibly literal sense.

All through the last two sets. the old master sprayed the court with magnificent placements. In the first two sets; he had been missing these shots by inches.

Pittingly he capped the match with a finel love game. Rosewall, the minth seed, seemed to be bothered more by the gusts of wind on center court-than by Smith. After the match, the club masseur urged him to take more time on the massage table than the younger players, especially since he has to meet a man young enough to be his son for the £10,000 ($24,000) first prize tomorrow. The Smith match lasted three bours, 12 minutes.

Third-seeded Connors, the man the other pros love to hate, overcame a poor first set to defeat Stockton in 99 minutes. Connors has always been a loner, but the other pros are angry at the lawsuit he has filed against Jack Kramer and Donald Dell, nificers of the Association of Tennis Professionals - the players' trade union.

In World Cup

Finalists Lacking 'Total Football'

By Brian Glanville MUNICH, July 5 (LHT).— Could Sunday's World Cup soccer final be described as a triumph for "total football"?

After all, it was West Germaoy. with a brilliant international team, and the Netberlands. through its equally dazzling Ajax club, which presented us with the concept, in 1972.

It was they who convinced re that anyone could do anything. that fullbacks could be transformed into strikers, sweepers into attackers, attackers inlo defendhalf who could not beat his man like a forward, a forward who could not tackle like a fullback, they had no place in the modern

Yet unlike the 4-2-4 and the 4-3-3 patterns of play that Brazil gave us in 1958 and 1962, total football has not caught on. The world at large has made gestures towards it, but no more. And though I have much admiration for the Dutch and West German teams, which I think will give us a memorable cup final, I do not think either can bruly be said to play "total football" anymore.

Perhaps the Duich would have come closer to doing so were it not for those unlucky injuries to key players. But you cannot take two such stars as the centerhalf Barry Hulsboff, so uncompromising in defense, so eager to move up to strike goal, and Gerry Muhren out of a team and expect it to be the same.

Heavy Cost

The absences have cost the Netherlands very dearly, and the view was confirmed in its match against Brazil at Dortmund, For they have lost from midfield not ooly Muhren but Airie Haan, who is playing upeasily as a so-called sweeper—so-called because Hann, a gifted middleld player, seems uncertain of quite how he should interpret his role. He was certainly no sweeper against the Brazilians, for he usually was playing in line with the other three backs. His natural peochant is to move forward.

In the case of Muhren, the Netherlands has at least been able to call on a telented replacement in Wim van Hanegem, whose left foot is a subtle and incisive weapon whether it be striking free kicks or making lmmaculate passes. But von Hanegem is static. Though physically strong, he does good by stealth. He simply has not the pace, the physical energy, to play the "total Muhren have played for Ajax.

The player who can fulfill it to perfection is Johan Neeskens, the third and perhaps the most remarkable member of the Ajax midfield. He is a orting tackler, but, as he showed against Brazil, he is also a rampant attacker, the imest foil to Johan Cruyff. Were Haan and Muhren with him in midfield, his vitally important forers into attack would probably a defender to be a "total" foot-not expose his team. As it was, they incritably left gaps in Dommund Wednesday, So Neeskens and the Dutch are caught in a cleft stick, Without his bursts, how to get the best out of Cruyff's incomparable play? But if he does go upfield so often, wen't risks be run? West Germany was certainly playing a form of "total football" in 1970, but it is not remotely so good a team now. Though Wolfgang Overath has struck form, even his best cannot begin to compare with the best of the faded Gunter Netzer, Though Sepp Maler, as he showed against the Poles, bas struck one of his periods in goal, his Bayern Munich clubmate Georg Schwarzenbeck is dreadfully suspect, and even Franz Beckeobauer nodded in the Poland game. requiring two marvellous saves by Maier to rescue him. Maier says lhat it would be ridiculous to drop Schwarzenbeck from center-half, now that the defense has settled down. I do not think the defense

The irony of it is that Schwarzenbeck has been doing his best work in atlark, rather than defense, It was he, after all, who scored that dramatically late equalizer for Bayern in the final this year's European Cup. against Atleuco Madrid, But for

Merckx Still Leading

BESANCON, France, July 5 Reuters .- Belgian Patrick Sercu won the second half of today's eighth stage of the Tour de France cycle classic, from Chanmont to Besaccon, But Belgian Eddie Merckx retained the over-baller, it is hardly enough for him to score goals. Berti Vogts, too, seems more vulnerable than his admirers behere. He has a tendency to get on the wrong side of the man he is marking, and against Cruyli, out on the Dutch left, he has only to do that oocc. Perhaps the most thoroughly versatile of the West German defeuders at the moment is Paul Breitner, whose stamina is extraordinary. Not only does he nverlan down the left, and sometimes on the right, but he shoots with tramendous por two goais in this competition show. Not that Wim Suurbier and Ruud Krol, the Dutch backs, are backward in that respect, Against Bulgaria, Krol told me. they bad orders to play a more restrained game, since the Netberlands needed only a point to qualify. They might be wise to restrain themselves against the Germans, too.

Unfortunately, it looks as if the Dutch will be without their lively winger, Robby Rensenbrink, who pulled a muscle against Brazil, There is slight hope that he may play half a game. If not, his surcessor will be either Piet Keizer now a veteran who slowed the team against Sweden, of Theo da Jong, a vigorous but inconsistent forward from Feyenoord

Should the game go into extra time, West Germany's fine physical condition may favor it Were the Netherlands at full strength with Muhren and Hulshoff, should not hesitate to forecast its surcess. As it is, I am still inclined loward the Dutch, But it will be as the Duke of Wellington would bave said, a damn close run

The man looks surprised, "I'm sorry, I'm the pilot of the plane," There is another official-looking man with a badge on his chest, "Sir," you say, "you people have committed one of the gravest crimes known to tourism. You

A Day in the Life of Miss America

By Judy Klemesrud

WINONA, Minn. (NYT).— There she was Miss America, there she was, signing autographs the other day for farmers' kids who blew pink bubble gum bubbles in her face at Choate's Department Store. There she was, posing for pictures with the Rev. Armin Deye, a smiling Lutheran minwho sat on the arm of her throne-for-a-day. And there she was, trading quips with the local Jaycees at banquet at the Holiday Inn honoring 11 Miss Winona hope-

Jaycee Jerry Papenfuss, efter Miss America had finished a fairly long speech in her forceful, self-confident style, told her: "When you get to be a lawyer, you'll never be at a loss

Miss America: "Maybe we'll meet sometime ... at the bar?" $100,000

It was all in a day's work for "Miss A" as Rebecca Ann King likes to be called. Miss King, a 24 - year - old Iowa farmer's daughter, hopes eventually to become a juvenile court judge. Meanwhile, by the end of her reign in September, she will have earned more than $100,000 in appearance money, and will have traveled more than 250,000 many Americans, Miss To America is just a thin and pretty girl with a rhinestone crown who sheds tears as Bert Parks warbles, "There she is, Miss America," and a year later returns to Atlantic City with a shorter, more sophisticated hairdo, to crown her successor. What many people aren't aware of is that she is on the road almost every day of the year, visiting cities and towns like Winona, a picturesque old Mississippi River city of 26,000. which was bolding its week-long 27th annual Steamboat Days. And Miss America, of course, was the main attraction, Several hundred people-most of them girls between the ages of

She was wearing a light blue cotton dress that matched her eyes, and a silver-and-gold pin that said, "Miss America." Her present chaperone and traveling companion. Irene Bryant, whose own daughter. Deborah was Miss America eight years ago, sat in a chair

Not Spectacular

Miss America isn't spectacularly beautiful, something she herself admits. She laughingly tells about the time in Milwaukee when a boy named Bobby said in front of her, "Golly. Mommy, she's not very pretty." As Miss America tells it, one reason was because she had to get up at 5 o'clock that "I won't start signing autographs until you line up in a straight line," she told the people at Choste's somewhat sharply, although smiling all the while. "And I'll only sign one autograph at a time. If you want more, you'll have to get in line again."

While some teen-age girls took a negative view, most of the autograph hunters stared worshipfully at this "dream of s million girls who are more than pretty."

"She's one of the top ladies of the country, and she's very important because she spreads goodwill throughout our country." said Mrs. Everett Timm, 40, of nearby Utica, a farmer's wife who had brought her two teen-age daughters to see Miss King

"I think it is a real honor to be the most beautiful girl in the world," Mrs. Timm added, "You just never know these days, it might be one of your own daughters."

Chrisanne Keilholtz, 11, of Fulton City, who, like many of the cirls. Was dressed in shorts and sandals, said: "Miss America is one of the most important things a girl can be. She got picked out of hundreds of girls and ladies. She'll be famous

One of the skeptics was Nancie Pickett, 16, of Winona. "I don't think she's so great." she said. "I don't think Miss America should say that she won't sign autographs until people get in line. She acts like she doesn't have time for us."

Robin Moe, 17, of Winons, said she thought Miss America should have worn jeans and a T-shirt, "She has to fit in more here," she said. "I don't know why she has to wear false eyelashes and fingernall polish and be so phony."

During a lunch break over a tunafish sandwich in a private office in Choate's, Miss King said she was frequently asked what she thought of Watergate and the women's movement. "I really feel that Watergate has been good for us," she said.

"A government 200 years old needs to be re-evaluated at times. But I don't feel it's necessary to persecute a man for something that has been going on for a long time. May-be we ought to take a look at everyone's closets and everyone's back rooms."

As for the women's movement, Miss King said she regards herself as "middle of the road," even though she is one of the few Miss Americas ever to talk constantly about wanting a career. One of the recurring lines in her speeches is that young women are one of "America's untapped national natural resources

"If a woman wants to stay at home, fine, and if a woman wants to be a lawyer, fine," she said between bites of her sandwich. "Maybe I'm not as radical as some, but I do feel I'm in a position to do some good for women. Every day I speak with business people and community leaders—people in a position of power to help men. I feel I can do more this way than by carrying a picket sign."
